

Building a standardized EHS program

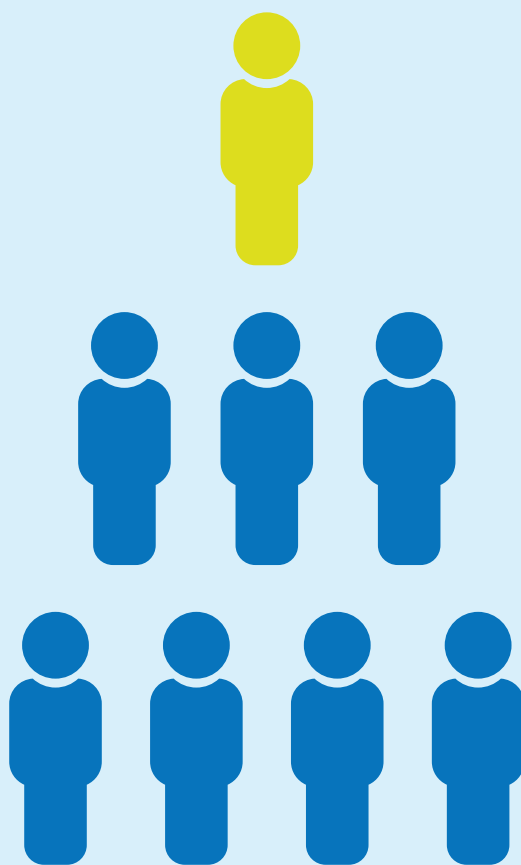

Tips for creating a standardized EHS program

Meeting EHS compliance to enhance your business operations and mitigate risks requires a standardized and harmonized program focused on advancing your company’s global compliance status.

To be able to identify, assess, and adapt to systemic risks, your EHS program must be devised with a top-down, bottom-up approach that ensures holistic visibility and accountability across teams.

Standardize your program with a top-down approach where leadership advocates, encourages, and implements the strategy to ensure everyone in the team understands EHS risks.

Top
down

Bottom
up

Standardize your program with a bottom-up approach where every member of your team feels empowered to source and track local and global jurisdictional requirements, ensuring accountability across the business.

Leverage RegScan’s EHS Alerts

Use RegScan’s tools to devise an efficient and timely EHS program that can be implemented across departments and teams.

- RegTracker helps you manage compliance across multiple jurisdictions
- My Watchlist alerts you immediately to any EHS regulatory changes

Find out more